STUDENTS’ AID GUIDE
of the University of Franche-Comté
Dear students

The health crisis has turned all our daily lives upside down since March 2020, especially your lives.

You should be discovering university by now, pursuing your education, whereas you have to face multiple upheavals. Those may relate either to practicalities (furniture, distance learnings) or to basic expenses such as housing, food, office supplies. Sometimes the upheavals can be psychological, and you may need help to overcome isolation. Difficulties can also occur when forging social ties. You may be waiting for answers, without knowing where to look.

The Student Office (BVE) of the university remains at your disposal to guide you. In order to facilitate your formalities, I had a Student’s Aid Guide written for you. It lists all the services and supports for which you are eligible. That guide also includes the aids that are dedicated for you. It will be regularly updated, to optimally meet your needs.

Your quality of life is a priority mission of the university. Supporting you through your academic life is not only our function: it is our commitment.

Macha Woronoff,
President of the University of Franche-Comté
In the current context and the health crisis we are going through, the Office of Student Life (BVE) becomes the key contact for any question or request on the emergency aids and support programs set up by the University of Franche-Comté as well as by its different partners.

The BVE is thus available to centralize the requests for student aid that you may receive, to direct you, to promote and facilitate the already existing procedures, but also to maintain the link with the « Student Life « team which works every day to improve the living conditions of the students of the University of Franche-Comté.

If you have set up or wish to set up aid (support, distribution, donations, etc.) to students, the BVE is also your key contact. It is important to give to this team the most precise description of your action as well as your privileged targets so that it can communicate about it and direct the requests.

For any of these reasons, please send an email to the following address: bye-infos@univ-fcomte.fr
